Sabian, 19 (pictured) comes from a poor Roma family in Muslim-majority Albania. To help support the family, he and his siblings roam the streets in search of plastic bottles and cans. Sadly, his father often drinks away what little money they earn. Like most Roma people, Sabian’s family are faithful Muslims. But this teen never found solace in Islam. “I always felt no one cared about me,” he recalls.

Four years ago, Sabian went to a Christian circus. After the show, the performers talked about Jesus. “I felt great joy in my heart and wanted to know more about the love of Christ,” he says. “I loved how these people accepted me, even though I was a badly dressed child of color.”

He soon joined a local Christian youth group. It was there he attended Bible League’s Project Philip Bible studies using materials you helped provide. “I wanted to receive Jesus in my heart,” he beams. “When I prayed with my leaders, boredom and sadness went away, and joy came to me.” Today, this young trash collector is sharing God’s Word with others. Praise God!
